

Fig. 1 For a mesh model, the original volume of its support (blue) is large in (a). Our framework optimizes orientation of the model to minimize its support volume in (b), and generates a set of scale-adaptive parallelepipeds inside the model shown in (c). The interior grid structure of the resulted model is shown in (d), and (e) is the result model.